

PULMONARY PUZZLER #3 ANSWER

You have IPF and you’re having trouble living a quality lifestyle. You need to choose one of three doctors in a practice to treat you. The first doctor lies all the time, the second tells only the truth, and the third tells the truth about half the time. The third doctor is incompetent and will pick a treatment plan that won’t improve your condition. The other two doctors make you feel better with a treatment plan that includes respiratory rehabilitation and improves the quality of your life.

You can only ask one question of any one of them when choosing your new doctor. What will be that question that that helps you choose and improves your prognosis?

Answer: Ask any of the doctors, “which doctor (s) will give me the best care available care”. Who ever answers with the names of two doctors is telling the truth (two of the doctors are competent) and whom ever answers with just one name is lying.
